

POLICY FOR SPIRITUAL, MORAL, SOCIAL AND CULTURAL DEVELOPMENT

MISSION STATEMENT

This Policy is carried out within the context and spirit of the school's Mission Statement. It supports and reinforces the aims of School, valuing all children equally and as individuals.

(The school's Mission Statement, which will reflect the ethos stated in the school's Instrument of Government, should be included here.)

INTRODUCTION

In contrast to the policies for specific curriculum subjects, this policy relates to the whole life of the school. Of particular importance in promoting spiritual, moral, social and cultural development (SMSC) is the example set by adults in the school, the quality of relationships and the standard of daily collective worship.

You may like to include one of the following statements:

- At School the promotion of pupils' spiritual, moral, social and cultural development is considered to be a 'whole school' issue.
- Spiritual, moral, social and cultural development should be promoted not only through all the subjects of the curriculum but also through the ethos of the school and collective worship.
- The development of positive values and attitudes is considered to be intrinsically linked with spiritual, moral, social and cultural development.

RATIONALE - LEGAL

The Education Reform Act (1988) requires the curriculum of a maintained school to 'promote the spiritual, moral, cultural, mental and physical development of pupils at the school.'

- Provision for SMSC development will be inspected by both OFSTED and Section 23 inspectors, although the latter will concentrate more upon the spiritual and moral aspects.
- All maintained schools – including church schools – must provide a daily act of collective worship for all registered pupils.

RATIONALE - RELIGIOUS/EDUCATIONAL

- The connection between good results in the curriculum and high standards in SMSC development is widely acknowledged and is evident in a significant number of OFSTED reports.
- The SMSC aspects of education concentrate on the development of the pupil as an individual and as a personality, aiming to enrich and extend the human existence of each child in relation to the values, attitudes, beliefs and consequent behaviour acquired during school years.

DEFINITIONS

A policy for spiritual, moral, social and cultural development will require a definition of each aspect and these should be agreed as being appropriate for the individual school. You may wish to use one of the 'standard' definitions, quoted elsewhere in the Guidelines, with an adaptation to your own particular circumstances or you may use those quoted below.

For example:

Spiritual development relates to the quest for individual identity and the search for meaning and purpose in our existence. It is associated with a dimension of life which is not necessarily experienced through the physical senses, but has much to do with feelings and emotions, and attitudes and beliefs. The term 'spiritual' need not be synonymous with 'religious.'

or

Understanding of self and others is at the heart of spiritual development and is not linked solely to a particular doctrine or faith. Spiritual development, is, therefore, accessible to everyone. All areas of the curriculum should contribute to pupils' spiritual development.

and

As a church school, we place special emphasis on the specific teaching and beliefs of the Christian faith, both within the daily life of the school and through the curriculum.

Moral development is concerned with pupils' ability to make judgements about how they should behave and act and the reasons for such behaviour. It refers to their knowledge, understanding, values and attitudes in relation to what is right or wrong.

or

Acquiring a knowledge and understanding of what is right and wrong is central to moral development. It is the basis upon which the pupils may develop the ability to make judgements about how to behave and it is the standpoint from which to consider the behaviour of others in school and society in general.

and

The system of rules and codes of behaviour established in our school is an important early introduction to issues of fairness for all and to the consequences of operating outside the accepted rule system. Pupils are encouraged to understand the need for a common code and to follow it from conviction rather than because of consequences or sanctions. Moral development, based on Christian principles, should enable pupils to become increasingly responsible for their own actions and behaviour.

Social development refers to the development of abilities and qualities that students need to acquire if they are to play a full and active part in society. It also relates to the growth of knowledge and understanding of society in all its aspects.

or

Development in this area enables pupils to become conscientious participants in firstly, the society of the family and then, progressively, the class, the school and the wider community. Provision for social development should balance the positive, satisfying elements of belonging to a group or society with the demands and obligations such membership requires.

and

The school, but in particular the classroom, provides a suitable environment for promoting social development within a Christian context. Pupils learn to lead, to use their initiative and to use individual skills and strengths when working together towards a common goal. The ability to be led, to support others and to recognise the different skills of other group members can be developed when children work co-operatively.

Cultural development refers to the development of knowledge and understanding of differing cultural beliefs, customs and traditions. It is an increasing appreciation of the systems of values and attitudes which form the basis of identity and cohesion within societies and groups.

or

At the heart of cultural development lies the necessity to develop a sense of personal identity, whilst at the same time acquiring awareness, understanding and tolerance regarding the cultural traditions of others.

and

In order to make provision for cultural development existing knowledge, interests and experiences are strengthened and then built upon further. In this way pupils gain a deeper understanding of their own culture and the factors which influence it and gain a broader understanding of other cultures and cultural influences. All areas of the curriculum can be used to promote and develop cultural awareness, although the arts, music, dance, drama and art are those used the more frequently.

Christian Distinctiveness. A further paragraph should be added to emphasise the Christian distinctiveness of a church school, how that distinctiveness will steer the specific aims and objectives of the school's SMSC development and how it will influence the ethos and expectations within the school community.

In a church school, such distinctiveness will permeate the four definitions of spiritual, moral, social and cultural development and the objectives of all other policies. The distinctiveness should be a natural extension of the school's Mission Statement and aims, which might be:

'to provide a Christian environment which will enable pupils to become aware of and reflect upon their own experiences and those of others; and to discover meaning and value in such experiences which might reveal the love and presence of God.'

The following Mission Statement and set of general aims from one Leicestershire school is quoted here as an example:

'..... is a Church of England Aided School with Christian attitudes towards life.

We consider it important to foster a personal, caring and happy environment.

We are committed to:

Teaching and living the Christian way of life. Providing quality education for every child.
Developing respect and consideration for all members of the community.

Our aims are to:

- help each child to achieve the standards of which s/he is capable, especially using language, numbers and scientific skills effectively;
- develop each child's strengths and provide support for any weaknesses;
- ensure that there is progression and continuity in the skills, knowledge and understanding which the children acquire;
- inspire and stimulate the children in order to foster a love of learning and inquiry, to argue rationally and apply themselves to tasks and physical skills;
- assist the children to become efficient learners – a life skill essential for our fast changing society;
- to develop respect for religious and moral values and understanding of other races, religions and ways of life;
- to help pupils to understand the world in which they live and the interdependence of individuals, groups and nations;
- to help pupils appreciate human achievements and aspirations;
- to develop a sense of responsibility, consideration for others, self-respect and self-confidence;
- to promote good relationships between the home, the local community, the school and the church.'

CONTENT

Aims / Objectives. It is suggested that the school compose its own aims and objectives, for each aspect of spiritual, moral, social and cultural development, freely adapted from these Guidelines and other sources. Some schools may opt for three or four general sentences, whilst others may prefer more specific aims and a precise statement of objectives.

Provision. These paragraphs should set out, clearly, how and through what means SMSC development will be provided for pupils. The text will demonstrate how the theory is put into practice. Schools will have their own ideas as to what should be included here and how it may be expressed. In the example overleaf, provision is listed under four headings: Within the Curriculum, Across the Curriculum, Within RE, CW and PSHE and Beyond the Curriculum since these seem to cover the entire extent of SMSCD. In order to illustrate this particular framework, the spiritual development section has been written out in full, with some examples. The other three aspects, moral, social and cultural, have one bullet point under each heading, as a starting aid, to which you may add further appropriate examples.

Assessment. It is difficult, if not impossible to administer tests or to make precise formal assessments about the four aspects of SMSC development. Schools may like to draw upon the Guidelines for statements about what may be expected. It is also helpful to set down stages, which can be observed, in the development of each of the four aspects.

Provision for Spiritual Development

Staff provide a role model for the children by sharing in the joy of discovery and in the mystery of creation. As individuals, they may share something of their own spirituality with both colleagues and pupils.

a) Within the Curriculum, pupils will be able to explore:

- an imaginative approach to the world;

Do pupils demonstrate:

- an understanding of moral principles which allow them to tell right from wrong?
- a respect for other people, truth, justice and property?
- an ability to stand moral ground in the face of peer pressure?

Pupils should move gradually from a 'taught morality' to taking responsibility for their own moral decisions.

The importance of the link between relationships and behaviour should be emphasised. The quality of relationships between teachers, pupils, support staff, parents and governors, at all levels, is crucial. These relationships will be characterised by mutual respect, by positive attitudes, by the willingness to listen and understand and by the valuing of pupils.

- increased participation in cultural activities
- attitudes expressed during cultural visits or relating to visitors

It is hoped that our children will develop a balanced approach to retaining the traditions of our Christian society, whilst perceiving in a positive light the contribution of other cultures, past and present

RESPONSIBILITIES

The Governing Body is responsible for:

- ensuring that the Church Foundation of the school is honoured and that the SMSC Development Policy promotes an ethos based on Christian principles and practice.
- ensuring that the SMSCD is put into practice and monitored by the appropriate governor
- engaging an appropriate inspector to carry out the Section 23 Inspection of a Church School.

The School Development Plan should include a section on SMSC development which gives an indication of planned developments in all four aspects and arrangements for review. The following may be mentioned, where appropriate.

- themes and approaches
- staff training and support
- development of resources
- whole school INSET

Monitoring and evaluating spiritual, moral, social and cultural development is an on-going process. There should, however, be some arrangement whereby formal discussion and evaluation can take place, at least on a termly basis, ensuring that all staff participate.

ROLE OF CO-ORDINATOR

The named co-ordinator has responsibility for overseeing the planning, the provision and the monitoring and evaluation of SMSC development. The co-ordinator will keep in touch with national developments and will act in an advisory capacity, supporting colleagues. Staff meetings may be used for discussion and the update of information. S/he will understand the impact that good spiritual, moral, social and cultural development can have on the school as a whole.

RESOURCES

Listed here should be any posters, books, artefacts, and videos that the school may have to support SMSC development and any suggested background reading and websites which teachers would find helpful.

EQUAL OPPORTUNITIES / MULTI CULTURALISM / ANTI-RACISM

Statements of any of the above (if the school has them) could be included here. They will demonstrate how the principles laid down in each will apply to the school's Policy for SMSC Development.

REVIEW

The Governing Body will review this policy, formally, two years from the date of its adoption. Informal Review may be necessary in the interim and should take place as and when required.

This Policy has been formally adopted by the Governing Body of School. It will be reviewed by the Governors, the Head Teacher and the SMSC Co-ordinator in conjunction with all staff two years from the date of the signature below.
