

What if learning...

Transforming RE, Collective Worship and Spirituality

*What if students learned about serving
through studying
transport?*

*What if maths
created a community
in which all could
achieve?*

*What if music
helped children to show respect?*

*What if learning
about flowers
led to wonder?*

What if learning... is an approach to pedagogy which explores ways in which teaching and learning can be shaped by a Christian perspective, in order to support a school's Christian values and ethos.

We have been working with three schools as part of a national project, using collaborative enquiry to explore What if learning... and examine its impact on teaching, learning and ethos. We will be sharing this research and case studies during the Autumn term at a series of twilight meetings across the Diocese.

If you would like further information about this project and ways in which you could be involved next academic year, please contact Verity Holloway:

verity.holloway@salisbury.anglican.org

www.whatiflearning.co.uk